

SEWV Support Knowledge Base — 05: Voice Guide & Additional Scenarios

Source: "Phrase Express 1.0" doc in Drive — Vanessa's actual canned-reply library. This file extracts (a) Vanessa's authentic voice/phrasing patterns and (b) genuinely new scenarios not already covered in 01-email-response-playbook.md, and corrects anything that's gone stale.

 Read this first — a lot of this source document is outdated. It still references: the discontinued Beginner/Intermediate/Advanced Level Courses (retired July 1, 2024 — see 03-products-pricing-and-current-promos.md), the old "Unlimited" name (now "Lifetime"), an old Yearly price of $238/year (current: $420 normal / $230 promo), old "TeacherAI" branding and pricing ($25/mo, $12/mo annual — current Vanessa AI pricing is documented in file 03 and differs), and dozens of old Teachable checkout links/coupon codes tied to discontinued products. Do not use any pricing, product name, or checkout link from this file — always use files 01/03 for anything product- or price-related. This file is for voice and for scenario coverage only.

Voice & phrasing patterns (still accurate — use these)

Beyond the standard format in 00-overview-and-workflow.md, these specific phrases recur constantly and should be treated as Vanessa's authentic voice:

- Opening: "Thanks for your email. I'm so glad that you are learning English with me!"
- Empathetic opener for problems: "Thanks for your email, and I'm sorry about the problem/confusion."
- Closing: "I hope that helps. Keep up the good work with English!" or the shorter "Keep up the good work with English!"
- "If you have any questions, feel free to ask" as a closing line, often paired with the above.
- When declining something warmly: "I appreciate you thinking of me" / "I wish that things were different so you could join."
- Sign-off warmth for hardship/sensitive topics: "I'll be thinking of you and hoping for peace and safety in your community. Take care."
- Vanessa refers to the course consistently as "The Fearless Fluency Club" (capitalized, with "The") in prose, not just "FFC."
- Time formatting: whenever mentioning EST, always write it as "[time] EST (New York time zone)" — e.g. "10 AM EST (New York time zone)" — not just "EST" alone.

- "FILES" formatting: whenever referencing the Facebook group's Files section, write it in all caps, bold, with quotation marks — "FILES".
- No em dashes in email content: use a comma or colon instead of a hyphen/dash within sentences sent to students (e.g. "something that might be a great fit: Vanessa AI" not "...fit — Vanessa AI"). This applies to actual email wording; internal editorial notes in this knowledge base can still use dashes.
- Capitalization of product names: capitalize the actual product name (e.g. "30 Day Listening Challenge," "The Fearless Fluency Club"), but don't capitalize generic words like "course" that follow it unless they're part of the official name — e.g. "the 30 Day Listening Challenge" not "the 30 Day Listening Challenge Course."

New scenarios not yet in the playbook

Fearless Fluency Chats (the official Zoom Room event — not just a casual suggestion):

This is an official, Vanessa-hosted weekly event called "Fearless Fluency Chats" (every word capitalized), held every Sunday at 10 AM EST (New York time zone), directly after the 9 AM Facebook live streamed lesson. Important: the room closes to new joiners around 10:08 AM, once breakout rooms start — so tell students to join as close to 10:00 AM as possible.

 Enrollment gating: only share the Zoom Room details (link, Meeting ID, Passcode) with currently enrolled FFC students. If someone isn't enrolled (e.g. just asking "can I talk with you?"), don't give them the Zoom Room info. (Vanessa is exploring whether a Teachable connection could verify enrollment automatically — not built yet, so this is a manual check for now.)

Zoom Room info (enrolled students only):

- Zoom room: <https://bit.ly/fearlessfluencyclub>
- Meeting ID: 871 7101 8794
- Passcode: speak

Full email template — see 06-phrase-express-exact-templates.md's Zoom section for the exact bulleted structure to use (4 bullets: Facebook live lesson with direct group link, Fearless Fluency Chats/Zoom, student-organized Zoom meetings with direct Events tab link, and the monthly MVP recognition) plus a closing offer to help directly via Facebook tag if the student can't find something.

Key links:

- Facebook group: <https://www.facebook.com/groups/1501481750153870>
- Facebook group Events tab:
<https://www.facebook.com/groups/1501481750153870/events>

- Fearless Fluency Chats Zoom room: <https://bit.ly/fearlessfluencyclub> (Meeting ID 871 7101 8794, Passcode: speak)

This is distinct from student-organized Zoom meetings, which Vanessa does not run or manage — those are found via the Facebook group's "Events" tab or by scrolling posts.

Private Facebook group — access & secret code: Group link:

<https://www.facebook.com/groups/1501481750153870/>. To get a join request approved, the student must include the secret code "English is fun" in their request. Approval typically happens within 24 hours (there are many non-enrolled people requesting to join, so requests are reviewed carefully). If they didn't include the code, ask them to resend the request with it.

Live lesson mechanics: Sundays 9:00 AM EST (New York time zone), automatically appears in the Facebook group feed — no action needed, but if it hasn't shown by 9:03–9:04, recommend refreshing the page. It's a bonus/optional lesson — not new content; it's a review of that month's current module content. Vanessa speaks; students type (no camera). Past lessons are recorded — find them via the group's "Media" → "Videos" tab, or by searching Vanessa's name in the group search. Note: Facebook only keeps recorded live videos accessible for about 30 days (Facebook's own retention policy).

Weekly review PDF worksheet: every week there's also a written review worksheet, available in the "FILES" section of the Facebook group's menu (Vanessa always writes "FILES" in all caps, bold, with quotation marks when referencing it to students).

Nervous about speaking / how to ease in: Suggest starting passively — typing answers during the live lesson while Vanessa reads them aloud (the live lesson is on Facebook already, so this is the natural first step) — before working up to Zoom interaction (Fearless Fluency Chats, or student-organized meetings). Mention the monthly MVP recognition: the most active member in the Facebook group gets a 1-on-1 chat with Vanessa on the last Sunday of the month, after the live lesson — other students can watch/listen.

Kids/children English resources (not what SEWV offers, but a common ask): SEWV's content is for adults. If a student asks for help teaching English to their kids, recommend Vanessa's friend's channel, English with Brittany: <https://www.youtube.com/channel/UCRjkwjGTRyaXII4F-ywMQMg> — Brittany focuses specifically on teaching parents (including non-native English speakers) how to teach English to their children. Also good to include, split by age:

- Ages 4 and under: Little Bear (official channel): <https://www.youtube.com/channel/UCncFzSeWqySvOXEbQoEJsZg>
- Ages 4 and up: Wild Kratts (full episode): <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=KX2HzjI0XO4>

Add these links to the bottom of any kids/children-related response. Beyond that, it's also fine to suggest general kid-friendly YouTube content by the child's specific interests (bikes, sharks, video games, etc.) in English.

French language requests: SEWV doesn't teach French. Fine to mention iTalki.com or a well-known French-learning program as an alternative, without further engagement.

In-person / local classes: SEWV is online-only, self-paced. Recommend Vanessa AI as the closest alternative to in-person, face-to-face-feeling practice — use the same blurb as the personal-tutor scenario above. If they specifically want a human, in-person teacher, it's still fine to suggest searching "English classes [their city]" or "English teacher [their city]" as a secondary option.

Video download/re-upload requests: Standing policy: no, YouTube videos cannot be downloaded and re-uploaded elsewhere (this happens often and would be impossible to track/control) — but embedding/linking her existing YouTube videos is fine. Exception: "react" videos are technically allowed under YouTube's own rules, so those can be approved — just ask for a link back to her channel in the description as credit.

Subtitle/translation offers from students: Standing policy: SEWV only offers English subtitles, to help students stay immersed in English — not translated subtitles, even if a student offers to help translate. That's a simple enough answer on its own.

Sharing course access with the student's own students (if they're a teacher): Not a blanket "yes" — ask a follow-up question first: how many students would they like to share access with?

- Under 5 total: fine to say yes — they can log in to their own SEWV course account and let those students use it.
- 5 or more: this needs to be escalated to Vanessa (tag her) — it's a case-by-case call, and she may want to offer a different price depending on which course is involved. Rare/unusual situation, not something to worry about happening often.

Buying as a gift / using someone else's card: Totally fine to use someone else's card, or for someone to buy a course as a gift for a friend. Payment-method rules stay the same as always (see 03-products-pricing-and-current-promos.md for which products accept PayPal vs. card-only).

"When's my next payment?" Tell them their last payment date and that the next one will land on/around the same day each month (can shift by a day depending on the month).

Website down / temporary outage: Simple acknowledgment + confirm it's back up, using the current homepage link. No special handling needed beyond that.

Student has two Teachable accounts and wants them merged: Teachable doesn't support merging accounts directly, but there is a "connect to my school" feature that can link a secondary account to the main SEWV school — worth trying before defaulting to "you'll just have two accounts" (see Teachable's own support doc on this, referenced in the source file).

OTP (one-time password) login confusion: Teachable now supports logging in via a one-time code sent to the student's email, in addition to (or instead of) a saved password. If a student is confused by this at login, explain both options exist and they can click "login with password instead" if they prefer not to use the OTP flow.

Bounced/blocked emails — Teachable's official safelisting guide: For a student whose email provider is blocking Teachable's emails entirely, there's an official Teachable PDF guide for safelisting their sending domains: <https://share.teachable.cloud/WnuxbR7v>. Worth attaching/linking this alongside the general "check spam, mark as safe sender" advice already in the playbook (see #10 in 01-email-response-playbook.md).

"Power pack" resource — currently inactive, not in live emails right now: This was a limited-time bonus resource — it is not currently included in the welcome emails new FFC students receive after purchasing. If a student references a "power pack" by name, this is what they mean, but it'd be surprising if anyone actually remembers/asks about it at this point. It may come back in the future as a promo/bonus add-on for an end-of-month FFC promotion — keeping this documented as a scenario in case that happens, but treat it as inactive for now. If it does come up, the resource link is:

<https://drive.google.com/file/d/1T6NDmbfBNpNbzdAf8BnbriEfq9sXvZy3/view?usp=sharing>

Vietnamese name order reference (for guessing correct greeting name): Vietnamese names are often family-name-first. Rough pattern from internal notes: the given name is usually the last word, not the first — e.g. in "Duong Thu," the given name being addressed is "Thu"; middle/first-position words tend to be family or generational names. When genuinely unsure, a quick web search on the specific name (as already noted in 00-overview-and-workflow.md) is more reliable than guessing from a fixed rule.

"Can I get a personal tutor / private 1:1 lessons?": Vanessa doesn't offer private/individual lessons, even to enrolled students. Recommend Vanessa AI instead — it's the closest thing to a personal tutor: unlimited speaking practice, available anytime, with instant feedback. Use this blurb:

While I don't offer private 1:1 lessons, I do have something that might be an even better fit: Vanessa AI! It's my AI conversation partner, available anytime day or night, so you can get unlimited speaking practice with instant feedback on your grammar, vocabulary, and pronunciation. It's like having a personal tutor without the scheduling. You can try it out with a free 7-day trial (annual plan) to see if it's a good fit for you: [Vanessa AI link — see file 03].

(If the student still wants a human 1:1 tutor specifically, iTalki.com remains a fine alternative to mention.)

Someone shares a personal loss, hardship, or unsafe political situation (war, conflict) unprompted, not specifically asking for a refund/unsubscribe: It's fine to respond with brief, warm acknowledgment ("I'll be thinking of you and hoping for peace and safety in your community") without necessarily taking any account action — a purely human, non-transactional reply is appropriate here, distinct from the hardship/refund-request handling in playbook #19.

Corrections to make if referencing old coupon/discount patterns from this doc

Several "internal notes" sections in the source doc show Vanessa and Ailsa working out coupon-stacking logic for discontinued products (old Level Courses, old "Unlimited" pricing tiers). The underlying logic pattern — offer a bigger discount to someone who's already paid for something now-redundant — is still philosophically consistent with the current $200/$650 Lifetime loyalty policy in 01-email-response-playbook.md #15, but none of the specific dollar amounts, coupon codes, or product IDs in the source doc should be used — they're tied to discontinued products.
